BACKGROUND

Technological progress is a considerable driving force behind economic growth and job creation. Information and communication technologies (ICTs), in particular, are reshaping many aspects of the world's economies, governments and societies. This applies to both developed and developing countries. The World Bank Group, which mission is to eradicate poverty and boost shared prosperity, is helping developing countries foster ICT industry growth.

ETHOS aims to enhance the development of ICT entrepreneurship in developing countries through transfer of technology, develop entrepreneurship skills, and strengthen capacity building to the participants from the developing countries.

Upon 1st ETHOS Program in January 2015, a hint of potential outlook was found to contribute in the overall expansion of ICT entrepreneurial sector, with its effort to create more opportunities in the developing countries. Through this establishment, ETHOS program have started to gain the attention from all entrepreneurs around the world expecting its 2nd arrival.

The 2nd ETHOS will expand to include diverse regions with focus on sustaining potential entrepreneurs and its network. We also believe global entrepreneurs can have the opportunity to gain cross-cultural experience in global business context and also acquaint renowned ICT experts to broaden knowledge and sustain insights in search for newer prospects.

ETHOS is a World Bank Group initiative funded by the Korea-World Bank Group Partnership Facility (KWPF) and implemented by SUNY Korea in collaboration with National IT Industry Promotion Agency (NIPA).
